a fresh way to talk about life's big questions

Session sheet

why on earth... bother with the church?

People have lots of different ideas about the church.
This session explores the very earliest days of the church.
We look at why new people wanted to be a part of it,
and ask what a life-giving church today might look like.

Text: Imperfect People

We saw that the early church got some things right, and lots of new people wanted to join them. But of course they weren't perfect.

That's because the church isn't made up of perfect people. It's made up of ordinary, imperfect people. But they're people who want to keep on growing, in two main areas:

- Faith in Jesus Christ.
- Love and care for each other.

Takeaway

Either:

- Imagine you and a group of friends have been asked to start a new church in your neighbourhood. What name would you give it, to tell people what's so special about it?
- Take time this week to list as many of the churches and Christian groups in your community as possible. Choose one of them, and find out more about it. Ideally, meet somebody who is a member of that church who can tell you more.
